

Boris Shulkin Vice President, Research and Development Magna International Inc.

Boris Shulkin was named Vice President for Magna International's Corporate Engineering and Research & Development group in January 2014. In this role, Shulkin is responsible for technical due diligence, technology incubation, product strategy and intellectual property assessment of new technologies and high-tech startups. Shulkin has more than 23 years of experience in the automotive industry. He began his career in the auto industry in 1995 as simulation engineer and joined Magna in 2003. Shulkin holds doctoral and graduate degrees in Computer Science, Mathematics, Applied Mathematics and Applied Statistics. Shulkin also holds multiple patents spanning manufacturing, process design, product and controls. He resides in Bloomfield Hills, Michigan with his wife and four children.